What does the Bible say about women anyway?

OUR SPEAKERS

Sara Prendergast currently is a second year MDiv student at the Jesuit School of Theology. After undergraduate studies at Cal Poly in San Luis Obispo, she did a year of Jesuit Volunteer Corps in the Northwest and fell in love with Ignatian Spirituality, the charism of the Jesuits. Since then, she has worked at USF as a Resident Minister in Interfaith programming and in different capacities at St. Ignatius High School. After her studies she hopes to continue to do ministry with high school students and/or young adults.

Sarah Stanley is a second year Master of Divinity Student at the Jesuit School of Theology in Berkeley. She received a B.A. from John Carroll University in Sociology with a focus in Human service, Health and Social Justice, minoring in Catholic Studies. After earning an undergraduate degree, she spent a year as a Jesuit Volunteer working for a parish in Bethel, AK. She is currently working at Santa Clara University in the Immersion Department of the Ignatian Center for Jesuit Education.
